Hi there, I'm Phemelo, a UI and UX designer with a keen sense of building awe-inspiring user interfaces. I love learning new things. I have an Insatiable need to develop myself. I have this belief that if it doesn't challenge you, it doesn't change you. I'm a simple organism obsessed with evolution and a warm cup of Rooi-Bos.

Take a look at some of the brands and agencies I collaborated with. Works varying from conceptual products to real world applications.

Project Description.

Wireframes are essential to develop any web/mobile application. Having a skeleton helps distinguish challenges some users might face before hand. This also allows you to strategically plan out your elements to capitalise on the users muscle memory that is associated to general haptic patterns.

While I design many mockups I noticed the most time consuming aspect about design in general is starting from the very beginning. While it may be fun it also is a time waster. So, using a Starter Kit helps me design at a more efficient rate.

Like all businesses the banking system also needs to evolve. Imagine a world where banking entities create custom payment solutions for digital artists and creatives alike.

A token-based financial system would easily solve the burdens that are associated with the SWIFT network. As a digital artist you could have your art work tokenized.

That sounds like a crypto scam, right? Not quite, in fact it would be the most secure form of economic exchange as each transaction is verified by a ledger which processes 1500 transactions per second with an average ledger settlement (approval time) of 3-5 seconds regardless of whatever bank you use.

Lightspeed is an internet service provider that is dedicated to affordable internet solutions for young creatives and content creators. The UI is minimal, with a monotone theme spread throughout. This was by far the most challenging tasks as I had to create and export animation and motion-sequences for developers to embedd in their code. The animation scripts had to adhere to the tech stack that they were using. Overall a learning experience that was fun and challenging.

Creative Mind

Every now and then a man's mind is stretched by a new idea or sensation, and never shrinks back to its former dimensions.

That being said, you can never change things by fighting the existing reality. To change something, build a new model that makes the existing model obsolete.
